

TWO STREETS TO BE PAVED

Plan for Brigham Is Adopted.

Council Takes Unheard-of Action in Relation to the Ham Show.

Members Will Try the Experiment of Paying Their Way—Much Routine Work Done.

At last the City Council has decided upon a plan for the improvement of Brigham street. In accordance with the recommendation of the Streets and Engineering committee the plan proposed by City Engineer Snow for the paving of the street to the west side of Tenth East was adopted last night and the City Recorder instructed to advertise notice of intention. The Council also authorized the Recorder to advertise notice of intention for the paving of East Second South street to Ninth East. The people along this street are anxious for the improvement and their petition to the Council was signed by more than the necessary one-third of the abutting property-owners.

Considerable discussion was occasioned by a petition from the Press club of Salt Lake asking certain privileges in connection with the presentation of the great "Ham" show on the 15th and 17th inst. The petition asked that a special permit be given R. A. Whitney, who will impersonate Sherlock Holmes, to smoke cigarettes and cigars on the stage of the Salt Lake theater; that the management be given free permission to parade the streets of the city; that the Chief of Police be instructed to have a platoon of patrolmen on hand to protect the City Recorder and City Treasurer, who are leading roles in the play; and that the Recorder be given permission to absent himself from the Council next Monday evening.

In Solemn Debate.

It was immediately moved by Councilman Barnes, after the petition had been read in full, that the same be granted with the understanding that each member of the Council be furnished with 100 tickets. Neuhouser thought that inasmuch as many of the showmen have been attributed to Lord Bacon that the name of this production should be entitled "Ham and Bacon" show. He favored the granting of the petition if the name was changed in accordance with his suggestion. Fernstrom had some doubts about granting the petition under any restrictions. He said he had reason to believe that the name was a misnomer and that the name "Ham" was given to conceal the real character of the play. "It is not a ham show but a leg show," he said, "and for police protection, I shall vote to have it granted under 'suspicion' of the rules."

A Desperate Resolve.

Councilman Hartenstein had a better idea. He moved that the petition be granted under the usual restrictions; that the members of the Council attend the performance on opening night in a body and that each member be furnished with a ticket. The amendment finally carried. A petition, signed by the Salt Lake Livestock and Transfer company and others asking that the drive up City Creek canyon be repaired, was referred to the Committee on Streets. The fire chief reported that the recent heavy rain-storm was that Mrs. Maguire's residence at 227 East Second South street. Her demand for $300 was referred to the consideration of the Committee on Claims.

Chief Bywater of the fire department asked that the sum of $450 be appropriated for the purpose of purchasing a new team of fire horses, and his request was granted. The City Recorder, Chief of Police Lynch asking for a leave of absence to attend the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police and for an appropriation to cover his expenses, was referred to the Committee on Police and Prison. The convention will be held at St. Louis during the week beginning June 6.

Much Miscellaneous Work.

Samuel M. T. Seldon, Superintendent of Streets and Irrigation, last night, submitted the applications of E. J. Nelson as clerk and O. E. Nichols as poll-tax collector, which were confirmed by unanimous vote of the Council. The veto of Mayor Morris to the report of the committee on the Moran stocker proposition was laid over for one week. The Council appropriated $100 to the G. A. R. to be used in a proper observance of Memorial day. The report of the City Recorder, showing that 22 cases were disposed of in the criminal division of the City court during the month of April, and that $22.50 was realized in fines and forfeitures, was ordered received and filed.

In a strong communication from the Board of Public Works the Council was asked to rescind its action of August 10, 1903, when it passed what is now known as the Perimeter resolution. The resolution provides that no public improvement be undertaken by the city until 75 per cent of the tax levied for such improvement has been paid into the city treasury. It was pointed out that the resolution unreasonably retards the prosecution of needed and desired improvements. The matter was referred to the Streets and Engineering committee, with the City Attorney associated.

The Black ordinance, increasing the license of peddlers, was passed, under suspension of the Council. The veto of E. and the Council adjourned to attend in a body the banquet given by the Retail Grocers' association. An invitation to the banquet had been received earlier in the evening.

LIFE INSURANCE AGENTS ENJOY A BIG TIME

Insurance agents to the number of about seventy, representatives of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of the district comprising Montana and Utah, attended their triennial convention, held yesterday in the Knutsford hotel in this city. The convention was one of a series being conducted by Vice-President Fisk to cover the entire country. The general business of the company was discussed in all its phases and plans were laid for a successful campaign. A banquet was held at the Knutsford at 6 o'clock last evening, with speeches, toasts and music, which was followed by a continuation of the business meeting.

Joseph Meltzer, the company's Utah superintendent, was in charge of the arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting delegates and the verdict was unanimous that his efforts were highly successful in making the convention both enjoyable and profitable. Among the outside agencies represented were those of Butte, Helena, Anaconda, Great Falls, Missoula and Ocean. Officers of the company who were guests of the occasion were Vice-President Haley Fluke, Fourth Vice-President J. Ayres, Medical Director E. D. Knight and J. E. D. Corwin, manager of agencies of the New York office and Assistant Secretary F. E. Taylor, Assistant Medical Director E. M. Holden and Superintendent of Agencies W. J. Smith, representing the San Francisco office.

HONOR WILL BE PAID

DR. J. F. MILLSPAUGH

Genuinely cordial will be the welcome extended this afternoon to Dr. J. F. Millspaugh, the well known physician, who is to be given a reception at 4:30 in the First Presbyterian church by the teachers and principals of the city schools. The reception, which will be quite informal in character, was suggested by Principal Caskey of the Collegiate Institute, who is Dr. Millspaugh's host during his stay in the city. The doctor having arrived yesterday from Los Angeles, where he has been lecturing at the University of California, he is the principal of the State Normal school. As principal of the Collegiate Institute in the early days and later the first superintendent of the public school system by the Liberal party, Dr. Millspaugh fully demonstrated to the people of this community his ability as a thorough-going educator, besides many other admirable characteristics. He is a man of high character and high position, and the teachers of the city are anxious to greet him.

Dr. Millspaugh has for some years past been principal of the Minnesota State Normal school at Winona and he is on his way back to that city to prepare for his return to his new field of labor in California.

"ASK THE FURNITURE MAN."

BRIGHT YOUNG MAN CLIMBS IN THE NAVY

Edgar A. Davey, formerly employed as a stenographer in the office of Knolls & Co. of this city, has demonstrated that there is a chance for a bright young man who is willing to make the effort to gain promotion in Uncle Sam's navy. When Davey, who is only 23 years old, decided eighteen months ago to give up a good position here to enlist as a yeoman at $40 a month, many of his friends thought he was foolish, and did not hesitate to tell him so. But Davey, admonished his friends to not worry. There is a chance to get on in the navy," he said, "and I purpose making a try for it." Word came yesterday by wire to the young man's home that he had been accepted for the North Atlantic squadron, with the rank of ensign. His salary now is $100 a month, and he is accorded some special privileges, including the right of being excused from having to secure shore leave and of wearing civilian dress when on shore.

"It all depends on the kind of property you have to sell," remarked a well-known real estate dealer, "the class of newspapers that are the most profitable for advertising. If I have something extra good I would not think of placing my advertisement of that article in a publication that I had reason to feel was not circulated among persons able to deal in the property I have to sell. It will do to advertise miscellaneous property in the common publications. Good property should be placed before the eyes of the thrifty classes. I make it a point to study the clientele of publications I place my advertisements in, and I find that this inquiry is very profitable."

In a plate of ice cream there is something like thirty million microbes. This fact should be interesting, considering the approach of the heated season.

Salt Lake clairvoyants are obliged to pay an annual license of $200, and the fee is payable in advance. This is one way of beating a game that is even more of a "sure thing" against the customer than the average slot machine.

Two young men decided to make the round of the fortune tellers recently and the comparison of their "astrologers" agreed on but one proposition—that the young men were "ambitious" and would "some time succeed." The manner in which they would succeed was to be reached by very different routes, but the result was to be the same.

Three of the persons, who claim to draw their knowledge from the occult regions, had the young men marrying girls with all shades of hair and with varying colors of eyes.

One of these told one of the young men to marry the girl that was born in May. He declared that if the young man did not do so that his wife would always be true to him. He had told the "fortune teller" that he was in doubt as to which of two girls to marry, and when he was informed that the May girl was his huckleberry he felt so good about it that he told the young woman about it the next time he saw her.

She wanted her fortune told, too, and husied down to the clairvoyant. She gave the man of mysterious knowledge a tip by describing her lover. He had no difficulty in creating a fortune to fit her case with surprising nicety. But the "professor" forgot what he had told the

THIEF MAKES A DESPERATE DASH

Snatches $200 From a Tourist's Hand.

He Discloses Hiding Place to Escape Prosecution.

Culprit Is an Honorably Discharged Soldier, With Good Record in the Philippines.

WITH $200 in greenbacks snatched from the hand of a tourist, Fred Copeland, a veteran of the Philippine war, was led a wild chase through alleys, barnyards and residences, and was finally captured in the rear of a stationery store on West Second South street.

It was one of the most exciting incidents that has occurred in the city for weeks, and one of the boldest robberies on record. J. W. Kilpatrick, a member of the City Council of Atlanta, Ga., entered the Rio Grande Western ticket office, in the Dooly block, about 6 o'clock last night, to transact some business relating to his transportation, being en route with an excursion to the Pacific coast. After finishing his business he sat down in the window seat and began to count a handful of bills.

Copeland snatched up beside Mr. Kilpatrick and suddenly grabbed the money. In an instant he sprang through the West Temple street entrance and fled southward. Seeing Cushing at his heels, Harry Cushing, one of the clerks at the ticket office, witnessed the robbery. He cleared the counter at a bound and ran after the thief.

The Chase Begins.

Copeland turned into the alley which runs back of the postoffice, followed its devious windings and came out on Pierpont street. Seeing Cushing at his heels, he jumped a fence and entered a back yard south of the Smith boarding-house, running breathlessly through the back door of the residence, he hurriedly examined that he was looking for a thief who had stolen some money without waiting for permission to look in any-where.

Physicians become disgusted with a class of patients, while they pay their bills regularly and make no complaint about the amount, decline to take the doctors' advice. One of these physicians had a patient who was always complaining. You do nothing, nothing toward helping himself. He would run to the doctor every day in the week and get all kinds of prescriptions filled, but would take none of the medicine, nor heed the instructions as to his conduct. He was one of those who would not take the trouble to breathe if it were not an absolute necessity to live. One day, in the fit of disgust, his doctor took him down the street and said, "Do you know what I think of you? You are too lazy to get well and therefore you are too indolent to live. Why, you will not stand and raise your arms into the air thirty days longer. You will not take a dozen deep breaths before going to bed. You have not the energy to rub your body one minute with a towel after you get up in the morning and before you go to bed at night. You are too indolent to do anything."

"To tell the truth you are too lumpy to throw out your chest, to walk briskly around the block. You eat everything in sight, but it does you no good. You are too fat. You don't chew your food, and I don't think you are sick, anyway. Do I want your patronage? Of course I do, but the trouble with you is you make me feel like a rogue. You don't do anything but pay for prescribing nothing you will take and to collect from you payments for nothing but hot air."

That fellow who was sent to jail following his confession that he had robbed a plumber, deserved to have an engagement with a dime museum. Most persons would look on his feat as one of the impossibles.

ALL CORRECT. His ancestors were antiseptic, made of antiseptic milk. In antiseptic carriages he rode, with antiseptic nurse, breathed antiseptic air. And though upon this mundane sphere he did not long abide, he left behind him a place in an antiseptic coffin when he died.

There are persons of prominence that will not walk under a ladder, return for a thing that they may have forgotten to take from the house, move or start on a journey on Friday, or look at the new moon over their right shoulder. They are superstitious, but will get as mad as a wet hen if they are entered in that class.

Here is the story of one fellow who has done a desperate thing to keep himself from being charged with being superstitious. An undertaker had failed and his stock was sold at auction. He had a coffin for each member of the family. When asked about it he said: "I saw an opportunity to buy coffins cheap. I am always looking for a bargain, and I did not let the opportunity slip. I don't see any harm in preparing for a thing which is certain to happen. I have reason to believe that every member of my family will die some day, and it is a wise man that prepares for a rainy day."

eral rooms, remarked that the robber was not there, and went out the front door and across West Temple street. Mr. Cushing had encountered Patrolman Clive, and the latter joined in the chase. They saw Copeland come out of the dwelling-house and pursued him across the street. The fugitive ran through an Italian fruit store on the east side of the street. Clive, who was mounted, knocked down a fence and rode to the interior of the block. Copeland had run through Tom McCoy's corral. McCoy, who was working there at the time, made a swipe at him with a big stable broom, but did not land.

How He Was Caught.

From the stable the thief ran out the driveway to Second South, and vanished. Officer Clive was close on his heels and decided that he had gone into one of the houses in the vicinity. He was assisted by Jacob Greenwald, the officer began a search of the stores. Mr. Greenwald entered "Barrows" saloon, where he saw and noticed a suspicious movement of the curtains at the rear. Pulling the draperies aside, he found Copeland cornered at last. The surveyor of the north dragged his prisoner to the sidewalk and turned him over to Officers Clive and Simpson. The thief was carefully searched, but no cash was found.

When Mr. Kilpatrick called at the police station to inquire about his money, the thief refused to tell where it was, but agreed to go and get it if Kilpatrick would not prosecute him. The Southern was obliged to leave with his excursion at 7:30, so he readily gave the required promise. Copeland went with the officers to the residence on West Temple where he had pretended to hunt the thief. In the pantry of the house he opened a tin box and took out the missing greenbacks, which he handed to the owner.

Copeland has a record. Copeland carries an honorable discharge from company I, Thirty-fourth regiment, United States Volunteers, which he served from August, 1899, until April, 1901, in the Philippines, and was appointed corporal. He was with several expeditions and in one or two engagements. The discharge describes his character as "excellent" and his service as "most faithful." He is about 30 years of age and is not a bad-looking young fellow. He was a shoemaker when he entered the army, but has been a gambler since he left it.

Copeland was locked up on the charge of robbery. Although those Kilpatrick will not appear against him, Mr. Cushing witnessed the theft and will be ready to give testimony. The case will be tried in the district court. Mr. Cushing's quickness that resulted in the capture of the thief and the restoration of Mr. Kilpatrick's money, is a credit to his character. Ticket office say that Copeland had been in and out of the office all day, evidently waiting just such an opportunity as the one of which he availed himself.

JAMES SHARP'S FUNERAL WILL BE IMPRESSIVE

Funeral services over the remains of the late James Sharp will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Mormon Assembly hall. Owing to the prominence and popularity of the deceased during his lifetime the funeral promises to be one of the largest ever held in the city. The faculty and students of the University of Utah, of which institution Mr. Sharp was a regent, will attend the funeral in a body. The members of the thirteen quorum of seventy will likewise attend in a body and reservations in the hall for other organizations have been made. The services will be conducted by the presidency of the Ensign stake. Friends may view the remains today between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock at the family residence, 411 East South Temple street.

JUDICIARY RACE QUOTE SPIRITED

Delegates Named for Convention.

Loofbrow Leads Easily in City for District Attorney.

Morse and Lewis Conceded Renominations for Judgeship—Others Are in Doubt.

DELEGATES to the Republican third Judicial District convention, which will be held in this city the 16th instant, were named at the several election district primaries last night.

At several places there were spirited contests and much interest was generally shown. The chief contest was for District attorney, the candidates being Fred C. Loofbrow, Benner X. Smith and Col. M. M. Kaighn. In the Salt Lake districts, the majority of the delegates are believed to be supporters of the candidacy of Loofbrow, while Smith has most of the out-of-town delegates. The Kaighn following is said to be considerable and some believe the Colonel will develop much strength by the time of the convention.

Judge Charles W. Morse is conceded to have enough of the delegates to be nominated almost unanimously. Judge F. D. Lewis is a close second and the other two candidates for the judgeship will be named from the following: George F. Goodwin, C. S. Kinney, M. L. Ritchie, H. H. Wenger, G. G. Armstrong, C. S. Patterson, H. S. Tanner and J. E. Harrington.

The evening before the convention, the third Judicial District committee will meet at 8 o'clock at the Kenyon hotel to select temporary officers of the convention.

Delegates selected last night, so far as reported, follow:

- 1-Martin Stockman, M. N. Atwood.
- 2-John McKnight, M. N. Atwood.
- 3-John Shorten, W. A. Graves.
- 4-Andrew Smith, Jr., Hyrum J. Smith.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

MAJOR WILLIAM M. ROYLAND, of Provo is making a very thorough canvass, personally and through his friends, for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The attempt of several prominent Democrats to eliminate Judge W. H. King from the race for Senator, by launching a boom for the former Congressman for Governor, seems to have been unauthorized and now it is said that King will not permit the use of his name.

Major Royland's principal opponents will probably be James H. Moyle, Maj. Richard W. Young and Quil Nebecker, but it is any man's race at this date.

Republicans are very well pleased with the appointment of Parley White of the Third precinct for secretary of the City committee. It is conceded that with Fred C. Loofbrow as the executive head of the committee and Parley White as its assistant, the party will be able to make a good showing in the fall campaign.

Judge Powers has been unable, even if unwilling, to conceal his interest in the gallant fight which William Randolph Hearst is making for the Democratic nomination. He regards Mr. Hearst as an exceptionally forceful man and while recently at Washington the Judge learned that the Hearst organization is one of the warmest things in National politics, no matter what may be said to the contrary.

Former Senator E. O. Walcott is an example of the adage that "you cannot keep a good man down." He is one of the best of the Colorado organization this year that his former enemies may be said to have lost out completely. The brilliant Coloradoan will lead the delegation of his State and march triumphantly into the Chicago convention again. And it's a safe bet that he will be a conspicuous figure in the Senate again before many moons.

Governor Winfield Taylor Durbin, Secretary of State Storms, and Attorney-General Miller have returned from their business trip to Stockton and will leave for Indianapolis this evening.

Governor Durbin may become a candidate to succeed Governor Fairbank should the Senator be nominated for Vice-President. He has a powerful following among Indiana Republicans, and it is said that
